UNION COLLEGE

Loses in Suit to Recover the $25,000 from the Speed Estate.

Before the death of Mrs. Speed, of Louisville, she agreed to give $5,000 toward the erection of the new dormitory for Union College here. She had paid $25,000 of the money before her death, and an effort was made by the trustees of the College to collect the remainder from her administrator, but owing to the fact that the contract was only an oral one, the Circuit Court of Louisville has decided that the administrator would not be authorized to pay over to the College the amount claimed, and thus the College had to bear the loss of the $25,000 which was so much needed to complete the new dormitory here.

Teachers' Examination.

The county teachers' examination that was held Friday and Saturday, June 17-18, was pronounced by the teachers as being the most difficult ever held here, and the Superintendent claims it was at least 20 per cent. harder than usual. The questions are furnished, however, by the State Superintendent, and he is responsible for making the examinations so rigid.

There were thirty-seven applicants for certificates, about one-half of whom succeeded in passing the examination. Certificates were issued as follows: Five first-class, 6 second-class, 7 third class, and 19 failed to pass who will have to try again.

RETIRED TOO SOON.

William Jennings Bryan Doesn't Believe that a square Politician Should Retire Too Early in Life.

The literary sensation of the year seems to have arrived in the shape of a book written by Forrest Crissey, the well-known western author, called "Fustlings of a Retired Politician." The literary form, which is a series of letters written by old Governor Bill Bradley, a retire politician, to his young friend back in the old district, is merely a vehicle, for carrying an immense fund of political epigrams and wisdom and a succession of snappy and pointed political stories which are running over with humor and realism. The best part of these stories is that they are true. The old Governor, after serving in the legislature in Congress, as Governor and United States Senator, has retired to Brokenstraw Ranch. In these stories he has taken the lid off, and is telling things. That the book is well written was to be expected, judging from Mr. Crissey's previous work, although this book and "The Country Boy," which appeared last year, are as far apart in style as the east is from the west. From the title to the last sentence of the nearly 500 pages the reader can get both profit and entertainment. Physically, the book is a gem, and the 58 full pages illustrations by John T. McCutcheon form no small part of its attractiveness. Mr. McCutcheon is one of the most popular delineators of political life in America. His grasp of character is marvelous.

In commending this book in a personal letter to the author William Jennings Bryan naively say: "Your politician retired too soon."

The book is certain to create more than a ripple among politicians and will be received with favor by readers generally. It is entirely non-partisan.

THE HOME CIRCLE COLUMN.

A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as they Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

Do not moan or repine over lost opportunities. Nothing will bring them back. But you live, and life means other opportunities, and hence rather press forward with full purpose to lose no more jewels than should bequeath your crown.

NOTHING is easier to form than a habit. The first action breaks a path through an untrodden wilderness, the next widens it, the third makes a trodden highway. When a young man or girl drops into slang for fun—or, still worse uses a word which borders on profanity—there is a feeling of recoil the first time; but habit removes restraint, and presently the unfortunate or improper mode of speech is used without conscious protest. To beware of an evil habit is as important as to form a good one.

AS we pen this column especially in the interest of wives and mothers let us draw a picture that noble woman had the courage to witness and can look upon with pride while the bravest of men had business calling them elsewhere. How can we picture to ourselves a more touching scene than the one which drew forth from our Lord these words of tender love? "There stood by the Cross of Jesus, His mother, Mary, the wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene, and with them St. John. Truly a sorrowful and loving band—the only ones who in the hour of shame dared to show their close personal sympathy with the Crucified. Only one man amongst them but there were three women there. Women oftentimes surpass men in courage, and they did on this occasion. St. Thomas had once said, "Let us also go that we may die with Him." But he did not go. St. Peter had avowed that though he died with the Lord he would not deny Him but we do not find him at the foot of the cross. But the three Marys are there. If by the publication of the Home Circle Column we gain the friendship and esteem of the queens of our homes, we will have no fears of being forsaken in time of trouble.

Woman has yet to learn the purifying and blessed influence she may gain and maintain over the intellect and affections of the human mind. Though she may not teach from the pulpit, nor thunder from the forum, in her secret retirement she may form and send forth the sages that shall govern and renovate the world. Though she may not gird herself for bloody conflict, nor sound the trumpet of war, she may enwrap herself in the panoply of heaven, and send the thrill of benevolence through a thousand youthful hearts. Though she may not enter the list in legal collison, nor sharpen her intellect amid the passion and conflict of men, she may teach the law of kindness, and hush up the discords, and conflicts of life. Tho' she may not be clothed as the ambassador of heaven, nor minister at the altar of God, as a secret angel of mercy she may teach His will, and cause to assent the humble, but most accepted sacrifice.

WE are soon to celebrate the greatest of our national holidays, the birthday of our nation. Arrayed in all the beauties of the year the Fourth of July will soon visit us. Green fields and a ripening harvest proclaim it, a bright sun cheers it and the hearts of freemen bid it welcome. From the lispings babe in the cradle to the aged warrior whose gray hairs are fast sinking in the western horizon of life, every voice will on that day be turned to the accents of Liberty, Washington, Country. The American Constitution is the purchase of American valor. It is the rich prize that rewards the toil of eight years of war and blood. The Constitution is the great memorial of the deeds of our ancestors. On the pillar and on the arches of that dome their names are written and their achievements recorded. While that lasts in will carry down the record to future ages. Great Britain had carried the fame of her arms far and wide. She had reached her arms across the Eastern continent; had humbled France and Spain and given laws to the banks of the Ganges. A few scattered colonists did not rise up to contend with such a nation for mere renown. They had a nobler object, and in pursuit of that object they manifested a courage, constancy and union that deserves to be celebrated not only by every reader of the Home Circle Column, but by every poet and historian while language lasts. It is fitting as our nation's natal day again approaches that mothers should present their children with a word painting of the little ship "Mayflower." It was in the cabin of this little craft that the charter was established as the rule which would govern the Pilgrims upon landing on the bleak and desolate shore of Massachusetts, was the germ of our constitution, was the seed which, though cast in a rocky and forbidding soil, has grown and flourished until it has become a tree whose branches and shade have overspread this continent, whose fruits are culled by the eager hands of the patriotic all over the world, that they may be planted in other souls and bear fruit in other climes. Let us look forward with happy anticipation to the dawning of the Fourth of July morning and teach our children to properly observe the day.

THE LAND OF LIBERTY.

In union there is mighty strength; Together we will ever stand. And to prove to all the world round That we are living in freedom's land.

Unfurled the flag of stars and stripes And let it float upon the breeze; Let freedom ring from every voice And echo through the forest trees. This land is the home of liberty. She gave to freedom sacred birth And rocked it in its infant state. To me the dearest spot on earth.

Glorious land of liberty. In thee I live for thee I'd die. And in thy bosom would I sleep Till summoned to come on high. If in the battlefield I fall, Between flashing fire and smoky cloud; Let me be buried on the spot, The stars and stripes my winding shroud.

Our forefathers won this dear land By bleeding on the battle-field; Will guard it with the greatest care, And until death we'll never yield. There's many souls sleeping today Beneath her bright and shining sun That fell on the battle-field When they this land of freedom won. O! halt today, and drop one tear Upon the soldiers' humble graves Who perished on the battle-field. To win this land of the free and the brave. Long let this land of freedom live And write its deeds on history pages; Its foundation was wisely laid On the solid "rock of ages." O! thou blessed "Rock of Ages, If any foe should ever rise; Guide our flag on to victory. From thy abode above the skies. —GEORGE HIGGINS.

in his masterly address in taking the seat as permanent chairman, "They say there is no enthusiasm in this convention. The great river that has its thirty feet of water, rising in the mountains, growing in breadth and depth down to the ocean, bears upon its bosom the commerce of all the land it drains out of the world. It is a silent river, yet the brawling river that is like the river Platte out in Nebraska (14 miles wide and four inches deep) makes more noise than the biggest."

While this was purely vernacular and put in the spirit of good humor it characterizes the nature of the people.

There was enthusiasm, however, at Chicago, but of a different kind that often marks the gathering of political parties. It was the enthusiasm of universal and abounding confidence behind the administration of President Roosevelt with his record of national honor upheld and national power and business prosperity advanced.

No one present could fail to be impressed by the prevailing confidence in the election of Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

The convention made no mistakes, and the people of the United States will ratify the work on November 8th by electing this ticket by the largest popular vote ever polled in the United States.

The Mountain Echo is waging bitter warfare upon Dr. Hunter, who is now a candidate from this, the Eleventh district.

It appears to us that Mr. Linney, editor of the Echo, is the last man who should boast of the defeat of Dr. Hunter for United States Senator. Every Republican in Kentucky knows that Dr. Hunter managed the campaign in which, for the first time in the history of the State a Republican was elected governor. At the same time under his efficient management, the State Legislature was also made Republican for the first time. It was the duty of that Legislature to elect a United States Senator. Dr. Hunter was given the caucus nomination of the Republican party in the Legislature for this high office.

Mr. Linney was then a member of the State Senate and had a vote for U. S. Senator, but with four others who were sent to the General Assembly as Republicans by their constituents, bolted the nominee and refused to support Dr. Hunter, causing a long dead-lock, which finally resulted in the withdrawal of Dr. Hunter and the election of W. J. DeBoe.

The true Republican spirit that Dr. Hunter showed on that occasion should never be forgotten by his friends or his party. When he saw that there was no possibility of getting these bolters to unite with the party and elect him to the office he had so justly earned, he gracefully handed back to the party the nomination, and permitted the election of some other Republican rather than continue the dead-lock and take the chances of allowing a Democrat to be elected to succeed Senator Blackburn.

Some of the very men for whom Dr. Hunter had spent months of his time and perhaps thousands of his money, knifed him at the very first opportunity, and are not content with that, but continue to hound him still.

It was not the purpose of the Advocate to take any hand in the contest for the Congressional nomination between Dr. Hunter and his opponents, and at this time we shall not say aught against any of them, as they are all honorable men, and if nominated, we will give them our hearty support; but we do not intend to see a paper in this district claiming to be Republican, make such vicious attacks upon Dr. Hunter without resenting it. Dr. Hunter has shown that he is a true Republican, and is therefore worthy of the support of any Republican in this district. He was the man who made the Third district Republican and would to-day be representing that district in Congress, but from the fact that a Democratic Legislature cut his county off into this district.

He has the interest of his party at heart, and is a high-toned gentleman and no Republican has a better record for fighting Democrats and supporting Republican nominees in the State than he, and we believe he will receive the endorsement of this district which will return him again as the Representative of this grand old Eleventh district.

If Senator Linney was sent out from Louisville to preach such doctrine to the voters of this district as is contained in the Echo, and to try to teach us how to vote, we believe the voters will repudiate him, and if his vote in the election of a United States Senator is a sample of how he wants the Republicans here to vote, we will state that we don't need any of his instructions. We are Republicans and will not tolerate a bolter and will resent his teachings.

The little thumb paper issued from the Corbin office under the name of The Laborer, has attempted to apologize for the feeble attempt it made in trying to defend one of its citizens whom, it is alleged, we had made an undue attack upon concerning his politics.

The truth is, and The Laborer ought to have known it, that unless the candidate had declared himself subject to the Republican primary, he would have been barred from entering the primary, and the county committee would have been justified in refusing to permit his name to appear upon the official ballot.

We entertained no personal feelings against Bro. Martin, but on the contrary, we wanted to see him set at rights before the committee and also before the people.

We would suggest that if The Laborer does not want to get entangled in the meshes of politics it had better steer clear of espousing the cause of political candidates.

The National Democratic convention will meet next week in St. Louis and the wall street politicians are offering to bet 4 to 1 that Cleveland will be the nominee of the Convention.

Acting Governor Thorne got his pardon mill to grinding during the absence of the boy governor at the World's fair but he has several pledges that have not been fulfilled.
